Gravesend's Great Race Promises Rare Contest.

Blues Likely to Go to the Post Favorite in the Handicap-Best Horses in Training Will Strive to Capture the Classic -Review of Performances.

At Gravesend next Saturday afternoon the sixteenth Brooklyn Handicap will be favorite. run. Next to the Suburban the Brooklyn Handicap is the most popular all-aged race in America.

Ever since its inception in 1887 the race 5 has been a favorite one with racegoers, and the winner of the event each year has been numbered among the very best borses of this country. Indeed, the victor of a Brooklyn, along with the winner of a Suburban, is generally hailed as one of Many paminent and wealthy owners have bent all their energies and spent thousands of dollars in an effort to win the Brooklyn Handicap.

It is a race where every horse is trying his utmost; where every horse is sent to yards. Frank Pierce, 101; Dr. Clark, 106; the post fit to run the best race be can; Banquo II, Ceylon, 108; George Lee, 101; where every jockey is riding his hardest. They are all anxious to get to the winning post in front, for it is a feather in the cap of any boy to have his name connected with a victory in the Brooklyn Handicap.

Feature of Opening Day.

The Brooklyn is the chief feature of the opening day of the Gravesend track, and when the time comes for the running of the race next Saturday a greater crowd than ever saw the race run will in all probability be on hand, for never before of the prosperity and popularity of racing in this country. The officials of the Brooklyn Jockey Club are anticipating a record-breaking attendance and are providing extra accommodations for their patrons. The Brooklyn has an advantage over the Metropolitan Handicap for the reason that the starters in the former are generally better seasoned. In many cases they have appeared in races before the running of the handicap and the public has had op-portunities to get a line on what the horses can do. In other words, their probable form in the Brooklyn can be "doped" out on their previous races of the season. Still, there is always the glorious element of uncertainty, and there are usually several "dark

First Winner of Race.

The winner of the first Brooklyn Han dicap, which was run in 1887, was the Glenelg horse, Dry Monopole. He belonged to the bookmaker Sam Emery and was ridden by Andy McCarthy, who was the third event the Hildreth entries, Federal and Theory, were equal favorites with Moneymuss. Federal won the race,

In 1888 A. J. Cassatt's good horse, The Bard, by Longfellow, won the race in good style from the Dwyer Hanover and Lake-land's Exile. There were eleven other starters and the race was run on a heavy

An Unsatisfactory Result.

The following year Exile won the race for Billy Lakeland, beating August Belmont's Prince Royal and the Western horse, Terra Cotta, who was the favorite for the race. The finish was not entirely satisfactory, as many thought Terra Cot-

The race resulted in a big upset in 1880. Bodge was the favorite, with Sir Dixon and Los Angeles well liked, but Castaway, by Outcast, belonging to Walcott & Campbell, and quoted at 20 to 1 and bet-ter, made a runaway race of it and galloped home an easy winner. The track was very sloppy. Jockey Bunn role the winner. Castaway's victory resulted in a match race a few days later between Eric, the third horse, and Castaway, and Eric wen. Eadge was second to Castaway in the handleap.

When Tenny Won.

David Tenny Pulsifer's famous sway back Tenny, the hero of many a hardfought race won the event in 1891. Tenny was a heavily backed favorite and his victory was a popular one. Prince Royal was again second this year, with the erratic Tea Tray third.

In 1802 Green Morris' Vagabond-Moon-light horse, Judge Morrow, heat a good field, including Walcott & Campbell's Pessarra, and the Morris Brothers' Russell. Judge Morrow was an outsider in the betting but he wen very comfortably at the cad.

Lamplighter's Defeat.

The next year saw the defeat of a cavily-played favorite. Lamplighter for weeks previous to the race had been looked upon as a sure winner of the race, but the winner turned up in Walcott & Campbell's Diablo, a horse of pretty good class. Lamplighter ran a good race and snatched second place from Leonwall in the last few strides. The value of the race that year was as great as at any time ward: selling; one mile. C. B. Campbell (Meade), 3 to 2, won; Miss Liza (Hoar), 20 to 1, second; Miracle II (Dean), 3 to 1, in its history, the winner getting $17,

Another upset occurred the following year, when Fred Foster's Onandaga horse, Dr. Rice, won the race, with the three-yearold Henry of Navarre second, and Sir Walter third. Dr. Rice had been sold the year before and was thought to have seen his best days, but Foster patched him up and surprised the talent and the owners of the other horses by winning the race.

Sir Walter's Three Attempts.

Sir Walter started in the race again in 1895, but again he finished third, the Messrs, Keene's Mr. Pickwick colt, Horapipe, annexing the big end of the race, with Lazzarone second. Hornripe was at Sir Walter made another attempt to capture the race in 1825, and was at last successful, the Oneck Stable's good little horse getting home in front of Chifford and St. Maxim. His victory was a very popular one.

Howard Mann was the winner on a very heavy track in 1897, beating Lake Shore and Bill Daly's Valley. Howard Mann was one of the extreme outsiders.

The West furnished the sinner of the race the following-year, when H. P. Headley's good colt Ornament came East and beat Ben Holladay and Sly Fox. Ornament's form had been so good that he went to the post favorite for the race, and his victory was also popular.

Banastar's Victory.

Banastar's victory for the late Mr. time record for the race.

Two years ago Kinley Mac surprised everyone by teating out a good field, with Reffaelo running second and Herbert third; and last year Conroy, a three-year-old shattered all records and wen the race from end to end. It was the first time in the history of the race that a three-year-old had met with success. Herbert moved up a peg last year, and finished second, with Standing third. Banastar, who was the favorite for the race.

was bedly kicked at the post and his chances ruined. A resume of the winners of the race shows that no one sire ever furnished two winners of the handicap, and no horse ever won the event twice. On five occasions the track has been heavy. Favorites have as a rule fared badly. Not more than three first choices have placed the Brooklyn to their credit, and the race generally has resulted in a big upset. It is almost time

Great Interest This Year. This season interest in the race is very great. Banastar and Herbert are the only two horses eligible this year that have taken part in previous runnings of the race, and Banastar will not start.

All of the prospective starters in the race next Saturday are now getting their final preparation. It is likely that the field will be made up of fifteen or more horses. In the future betting on the race Blues is the favorite, due to a heavy Blues is the favorite, due to a heavy plunge on the horse within the last few days. Herbert is a strong second choice, with Advance Guard the next fancied, and Oom Paul, Rochampton, Chilton, and Pentecost most liked of the others

Herbert's Good Form.

Of those that have started this year Herbert's form has been the best. His only start was in the Metropolitan Handicap, in which race he had a very rough journey, ran a capital race, and finished second. It was the universal opinion that with good luck Herbert should have won. But just there is the rub when Herbert is sidered. He has always been an unlucky horse and has lost a number of races that he would have won had he met with luck that falls to the lot of ordinary racers. If the law of progression holds good. Herbert should win, as in the last two years he has been third once and sec-ond once. However, Herbert is said to has there been such pronounced evidence be in as good shape as he ever was in his life, and is the pick of many shrewd turf-men. His trial a few days ago was an impressive one and caused many owners who had hopes of winning the race to

Blues is said to be going great guns in his work, and this has caused the recent heavy play on the Far-rell horse. Advance Guard, Alex Shields' representative, made his first appearance in a race on Thursday, when he ran fourth and ever since the Brooklyn has retained its interest for the pablic. Dry Monopole won by a head from Blue Wing, with Hidalgo only a short fead away. It was a desperate drive and the finish has been perpetuated in ell a number of times. The time made in that raigh for the mile and a quarter was 2:67 and it was not bettered until 1898, when Banastar ran the erally piled on him, and in the past the horse has rarely failed to show well when he was asked to carry less than 129 pounds. His weight in the Brooklyn is Bounds. His weight in the Brooklyn is 119 pounds.

Rochampton, although he beat Advance Guard in the Claremont Handicap on Thursday, will not, in the opinion of good Judges, beat the Great Tom horse the next time the two meet. Mr. Follansbee's horse may win, but he will have to have below their form there has a beauty for this show better form than he has so far this season. He seems to be a great horse in mediocre company, but only a fair one in the best

Alcedo, last year's Suburban winner, who has been pointed for the Brooklyn, will have to improve very much to land the race. The same is true of Bonnibert, Brigadier and Ethics. Hernando has gone back in the betting and will likely not be a starter. On last year's form he has a royal chance, but he has not been heard of so far this year. The Mackay entries, Yesterday was the greatest day yet oted in Georgetown University's aquatic history. It marked the first victory since informed that they were ready, he prompt ly gave the word "Go!"

And "go" they did, but the word came so suddenly that the navy, which was nearest the Manley, got it first, and was making its second stroke when Georgetown was making the first.

In a few strokes the boats were even up, and at about that time the visiting boat was seen to go out of its course and was gradually losing ground when Coxswain Manion, who had not been over the course before, saw his error and straightened out, and in this movement lost at least two lengths.

Navy Rows at 39.

Now they settled down to work. Navy rowing thirty-nine strokes to the minute, while Georgetown was pulling steady at thirty-six. The sixteen pairs of arms were shooting in and out like machinery, the big broad backs, stripped, glistened in the sun, and before the one-eighth mile was passed real hard work had been done. There is plenty of water at Annapolis, but there is literally no good place from which to view a race, and as a result there were very few spectators, except those who were fortunate enough to secure invitations to any one of the many torpedo boats, ships, tugs, and steam launches. These boats made a pleasing picture as they steamed up and down the course before the race and lined up

Aboard the Torpedo Boats. There were no notables on hand to encourage the cadets with their presence, and many of the Academy's lesser lights who might have helped with their smiles were at West Point, seeing the battle on the diamond between the Army and Navy. Among the many Government boats freighted with spectators were the Standish, torpedo boats Gwynn, Talbot, and Manley, the last used as the referee's boat; the captured Spanish torpedo boats Alvarado and Sandoval, and the Chesa-

At the mile and a half positions were unchanged, but here the Georgetown men, rowing well within themselves and never once spurting, picked it up for a few strokes and sent their boat ahead ten or twenty feet, and they were now leading by nearly a length, which they held until the finish flag was in sight, when the Navy gradually dropped back, but pluck-ily pulled in form, and at the drop of the flag the Georgetown boys had won with a length of clear water between them and the Navy, and the victory was theirs by a good two lengths, in 10:14, Navy in 10:18. Enthusiastic cheering and the blowing of whistles and sirens greeted the vic-tors and then the crews cheered one an-

STRONGEST SOUTHERN TEAM.

Best Players of Small Colleges Picked for All-Round Club.

In a communication to The Times, Mr. F. A. Savoy submits what he considers the best all-around baseball team, selected from the players of the various Southern college nines. Mr. Savoy's selections would certainly form a very strong baseball aggregation, and would give the best of the professionals a hard tussle. His champion college team would be as follows:
